DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 15, 19, and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. What exactly is a "DeLand enabled scanner/card reader"? Is "DeLand" a trademark?

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-7, 10, and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Goldman (US 4,568,936) in view of Indeck et al. (US 5,546,462) (hereinafter referred to as 'Indeck').

Goldman teaches a card C carrying print 16 indicating the name of the assigned card holder along with a photographic likeness 17, and a magnetic stripe 18 onto which is recorded uniqueness characteristic of the card C from data locations D1, D2, D3, and D4 and statistical data SD representing the birthdate of the assigned card holder (col. 3, lines 14-18; col. 4, lines 4-10; and col. 5, lines 18-60).

Goldman lacks the teaching of the second reference data element representative of a biometric aspect of the card holder and the teaching of the digital data storage medium being a magnetic stripe.

Indeck teaches the use of a secondary security check in the form of a human fingerprint (col. 8, lines 30-35). Also taught is the recording of the magnetic “fingerprint” at a specific region 40 of a thin film magnetic medium 42 (col. 9, lines 52-57).

One of ordinary skill in the art would have readily recognized that encoding the uniqueness of the magnetic stripe itself onto the magnetic stripe would have been advantageous since, in this manner, the uniqueness characteristic does not have to be based upon some other region of the card and can therefore minimize the steps needed for the security process. Furthermore, utilizing a biometric aspect to be stored on the magnetic stripe would have been beneficial for providing unique and distinctive identification of the card holder. Therefore, it would have been obvious, at the time the invention was made, to modify the teachings of Goldman with the aforementioned teaching of Indeck.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 8, 9, and 12 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

6. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: the prior art of record fails to teach or fairly suggest either alone or in combination thereof, a method for verifying the authenticity of a mag-stripe card and verifying the identity of the card user presenting the card at a transaction site, the mag-stripe card having a card surface with visually readable indicia indicative of an authorized user of the card and an electronically readable digital data storage magnetic stripe permanently affixed to the card , the method comprising the steps of: deriving a third reference data element representative of a scanned image of the visually readable indicia. Furthermore, no motivation is found to combine any of the references of record to arrive at the claimed invention.

7. Claims 13-23 are allowed.

8. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: the prior art of record fails to teach or fairly suggest either alone or in combination thereof, a method for verifying the authenticity of a mag-stripe card and verifying the identity of the card user presenting the card at a transaction site, the mag-stripe card having a card surface with visually readable indicia indicative of an authorized user of the card and an electronically readable digital data storage magnetic stripe permanently affixed to the card, the method comprising the steps of: deriving a third reference data element representative of a scanned image of the visually readable indicia. Furthermore, no motivation is found to combine any of the references of record to arrive at the claimed invention.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Conclusion

9. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Valerij et al. (US 5,790,662) teach a data carrier and write/read device therefor.

Moschner (US 4,094,462) teaches a method and means for providing and testing secure identification data.
